

Abstract

The invention relates to a method for the production of drop forge parts essentially comprising titanium, zirconium, hafnium or a corresponding alloy, enabling rigidity thereof to be increased.